Professor Young has a deep interest in the course content and shows it by the thoughtfulness with which he answers questions in-class. He provides us with content before a reading and helps students understand the reading as well. He is very understanding about absences due to illness and is truly a great professor.
Professor Young is clearly very knowledgeable about the course subject. He could answer almost any question you asked and I never felt he was biased.
He was very enthusiastic and always kept students engaged. There was always student participation as he would have students read readings out loud in class.
The professor is incredibly knowledgeable on the subjects he teaches to the class. He conducts himself in a way that conveys authority on the history of Christianity. These attributes make me attentive during class time and have me wanting to learn more about the history.
He was really knowledgeable in what he taught and really loved talking about it.
Professor Young is so knowledgeable on the course content, it was truly a fascinating class. He does great at keeping open discussion in class and explaining everything thoroughly. I love that we get to read the material together in class, it really helps grow my understanding. Professor Young is great at what he does.
demonstrated a clear and organized teaching style that made complex topics easier to understand. He was approachable and responsive to questions,
Very good at explaining the material and was very open to talk to after class.
very chill and facilitated meaningful discussion in class
Comprehensive knowledge of the course subject with a willingness to admit when he didn't have a definite answer.
He is very knowledgeable and enthusiastic about the material, which made it interesting to learn about.
His biggest strength was the open nature of the course. There was not a pressure to learn this or that because of an Exam, but instead it was learn this because you actually want to learn about the material. This has allowed for me to understand the material in a better manner than other classes.
Enthusiastic, Knowledgeable.
Had an interest in the topic, very accommodating, and took time to answer individual questions
It was evident that Mr. Young is very passionate about the subject in the way that he teaches the course and helps his students. He really wants his students to understand the topics of the course which is evident in the way he lectures and answers questions.
Very intelligent and answered any question I had very well. Also readily available, through emails and office hours. Very willing to help and very kind.
Fostered engagement in the classroom – encouraging students to answer and ask questions.
Was a very caring professor and had a very welcoming and good learning environment.
Instructor was very helpful with teaching all parts of topics, I was never lost during this class.
Very helpful feedback on assignments, great course load that allowed me to focus on the material rather than stress about busy work. Also all the assignments were very unique and I appreciated how this course allowed me to get out of my comfort zone.
Very knowledgeable and approachable, not too strict but still ensures we learn. Very flexible and understanding and clearly passionate about subject.

What additional constructive feedback can you offer the instructor that might help improve the course?

Comment
I think that attendance should be taken within the first 10 minutes of class as it is disrespectful to the professor for students to be arriving 30 minutes after the start of class.
I think the course was too lecture heavy. My classmates and I never had the opportunity to collaborate with each other or even really interact with each other in a meaningful way. It was really hard to focus during class, especially because it was so early in the morning and it felt like I was listening to a podcast I didn't really want to listen to. The readings were helpful but I didn't feel equipped to understand them after first listen so when we were asked questions I never wanted to answer because I didn't think I would get it right. Overall my biggest point of feedback would be to make the course way more engaging.
Maybe assign readings to discuss in class instead of always reading them in class.
Currently, I do not have constructive feedback to offer. The professor has done a stellar job at teaching this course.
The class definitely felt repetitive. Should definitely turn some classes into group discussions or an interactive project or something like that.
I'm not sure, I love how the class is structured.
I have no additional feedback; the course was well-structured and effective.
N/A
A little more background information on certain topics, like maybe supplementary readings from secondary sources that explains certain concepts.
None
I feel like you do not need to modify much in the actual course, as it is amazing.
I would have liked a more back and forth with the professor in the classroom. The first class, the Professor fostered a healthy dialogue between studnets, however as the semester went on, the professor moved away from this form of teaching.
I think lecture slides would make it easier to remember information for the essays
The course is very reading heavy which can be a little hard for some students to digest. I wouldn't say to reduce the readings but rather add more visuals such as images and videos to appeal to all the learning styles of students.
N/A. All the readings were very interesting and the assignments were reasonable.
N/A.
None! very well made schedule and very positive instructor feedback.
I don't have any, this was an amazing course
Straight readings everyday in class are not an ideal way to learn, maybe instead switch it up.
N/A

What constructive suggestion(s) do you have for improving the course materials, organization, and assignments?

Comment
I do not have any. I deeply enjoyed the church observation assignments and sincerely hope the professor chooses to keep them in the curriculum. I enjoyed visiting different services and historicizing them, and I felt as though there was ample time to complete every assignment as they are very spaced out.
I did not like the annotation assignment at all. I felt super ill equipped to read this material on my own and write 20 different responses on a small section of the paper. I would completely remove that assignment and maybe replace it with something group related. I normally hate group work but I would take that over the annotation assignment any day.
I would say the course organization was very well thought out and I have no suggestions.
I do not have any constructive suggestions to give at the moment. The professor has done a phenomenal job at structuring this course.
The assignments themselves were perfect.
I'm not sure, I really like the course. There is a good variety of assignments and there is a great structure.
I have no additional feedback; the course was well-structured and effective.
I like the way the assignments were put into the class.
nothing
Canvas page was laid out really well.
I think the format of the class assignments was great.
Maybe have some other content other than readings. Some more typical lectures could be engaging.
Not really anything I think needs to be improved.
Nothing. I thought the professor selected extremely well thought out and educational items for the course.
lecture slides
Overall the course materials, organization, and assignments are very effective. The only suggestion would be maybe adding more additional materials that students could use to get an even deeper understanding of the topics discussed in class.
N/A. All readily available in Canvas. Very clear.
I wish that the Church observation assignments were something more related to the class.
Have less time reading the reading in class and more handouts and discussions.
Smaller samples of texts/ shave down all the fluff.
none
reading primary sources everyday tended to get boring maybe incorporate other methods of teaching

I learned how to interpret readings, historicize and contextualize modern church practices, and analyze my observances to write concise papers about these observations. I will use these skills far into my future as a lawyer to interpret and analyze the law.
I think cross-analysis of assigned readings was improved.
I have learned skills such as critical thinking, paper writing, and textual analysis throughout the course. Looking in-depth into a document and parsing each word in a sentence has strengthened my reading skills tremendously. I plan on using these skills in future endeavors.
This class definitely improved my knowledge in reading primary sources and analyzing/annotating them.
I have improved in analyzation and writing skills. I have also gotten better at interpreting hard to read historical material.
In this course, I learned a wide range of early Christian historical topics, which helped me understand the development of Christian thought, practices, and institutions over time.
Our writing and analyzing skills became much better in the class.
Critical thinking on religious historical texts.
Identifying continuities across time and analyzing/taking notes on real-time experiences.
The most useful tool is being forced to analyze and compare the given situation with the previous history and development of said situation.
Analytical readings, reading comprehension.
understanding of other religions and the ability to understand them historically Interpreting and analyzing the very old texts of the course through in-class discussions and assignments will be very helpful for my future courses and profession.
Critical thinking skills, but specifically reading and understanding a text. Then, taking the themes, ideas, etc. in those texts and connecting them. This will be useful as a future lawyer. Or, if I decide to do history or philosophy.
How modern Christianity has changed from how it was hundreds of years ago, but is still similar in other ways as in old times.
How to properly annotate texts and how it looks when complete.
Being pushed to go visit different churches helped me get out of my shell
Writing, research, critical thinking, etc.
